'Not In Vain'

Nixon Reassures Ohio Mother

WASHINGTON (AP) - "You can be proud of your son. I am sure he would be proud of you, President Nixon has told an Ohio mother who asked him if her son's death in Vietnam was in vain. Mrs. Richard F. Keyer Sr.

of Xenia, Ohio, had written Nixon after receiving a letter from the American Deserters Committee in Sweden.

The group told Mrs. Keyer that her son, Dennis, had died in a "futile and senseless war" and urged her to join efforts to Mrs. Kever sent the message to Nixon, along with her letter, in which she said: "Mr. President, our son believed in this country and in what he was doing. "He was not ordered. He was a volunteer. He was a fine voung man. "If we cannot believe in our country and a merciful God, what can we believe in?"

Nixon, replying to that question, said:

answer yourself. "If we begin with belief in a merciful God, if we proceed to belief in our country-not merely because it is ours, but because its ideals are precisely those that mankind has strived the centuries to through achieve, and if we round this out with belief in the essential goodness and dignity of man himself, then I think we have the elements of a faith which can withstand the assaults even of those who would intrude on a mother's grief. The President assured Mrs.

Keyer that her son had not died in vain. "I can understand the feelings of those who cry out against war and demand its end now. I can also understand your feelings in writing that you pray your son's life was not lost in vain. It was not. "Your letter is evidence that the things he died to defend are still alive and vital; the love of country, the great humane traditions, the thoughfulness of others that is the true cement of civilization," he said.

The exchange of letters, as well as that from the deserters to Mrs. Keyer, was placed in the Congressional Record Friday by Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D.

Hand India 'Ultimatum' Troop Withdrawal Demanded At Pass

On Tibetan Border By JAMES M. MARKHAM

Associated Press Writer NEW DELHI (AP) — Reliable sources said today Communist China gave India a 24-hour ultimatum Wednesday to withdraw its troops from the strategic Nathu La pass on the Sikkimese-Tibetan border.

Indian and Chinese troops clashed there in September 1967.

The informants said the local Indian commander on the border gave a counter-warning before the deadline expired, saying Indian troops would retaliate if China opened fire on their

The Chinese deadline expired at noon Thursday without incident, according to several sources in New Delhi. Indian La were reported on full alert.

The chief of the army staff, General P. P. Kumaramangalam hastened from the capital Friday for a trip to the eastern front.

The informants said the Chinese warning focused on the Chumbi Valley, which separates the two Indian-protected kingdoms of Bhutan and Sikkin. Indian and Chinese troops face each other at close range in the Himalayas of Sikkim,

The warning, understood to have been delivered through diplomatic channels, followed a heightened campaign of Chinese propaganda attacks against Indian leaders Radio Peking charged last Wednesday that India is "frantically expanding its armament and making war preparations."

A Peking broadcast earlier in the month warned: "No matter when and where you invade us, no matter whether you come by yourselves or together with your masters, the Soviet revisionists, you shall be beaten black and

The Chinese made similar statements before fighting broke out for a week in September 1967 at Nathu La pass in the Chumbi Valley.

The informants noted that New Delhi, which earlier this year attempted to open a diplomatic dialogue with Peking, has recently shifted to a less cordial

Wanted: Two Minutes Of Thought

It isn't very often a newspaper asks its readers for a favor.

But it isn't very often a community finds itself in a near - crisis with its schools.

We ask every qualified voter in the East Liverpool School District to give two minutes of serious thought some time before May 6 about the two proposed levy renewals.

*There are various reasons why one might vote against the two levies. The whole nation is currently caught up in a resistance to new taxes - but these two issues are not new. Internal problems in the school system have caused community concern - but they are not an issue in this election. Some people claim they cannot afford them-but someone afforded school taxes to give these same people their education when they were young.

The right to a proper public education has been a long American tradition. It is vital to a democratic system of self - government. It has been a responsibility well met in East Liverpool throughout the city's history

We ask the voters of this school district to spend two minutes contemplating what the $679,000 of local funds plus the state foundation monies which relate to these local funds mean to the education of our voung

We urge anyone who believes this financing -three-fourths of the school budget-is not necessary to vote against the levies.

But we believe that two minutes of honest thinking will bring a true citizen's decision to vote the other way.

Park Potential

Now that spring is truly upon us, a good way to make a renewed acquaintance with this welcome season would be to visit Beaver Creek State Park Sunday when open house and special flower tours will be offered.

Division of Parks and Recreation personnel will provide information and guidance to special sites which the visitor might miss on a casual tour of the creek area.

The visit should serve as a reminder of the beauty of the wooded valley and of the need for continuing efforts to preserve this valuable natural resource and enlarge it to meet its full recreation potential.

Finnish Reds Break Soviet Grip

Czechoslovakia has been hammered back into subservience to the Soviet Union, for how long no one knows.

Russia's repressiveness has resulted in the ouster of Alexander Dubcek, who tried to bring freedoms to his people, and the granting of Kremlin-controlled power to Gustav Husak, looked on as Moscow's man.

But while Czechoslovakia was being prevented with force from becoming, in any way, independent of Russia, the Finnish Communists fought themselves free from Soviet domination for the first time in their 50 years of existence.

AARNE SAARINEN, chairman of the Finnish Communist party, and his young liberal Communists, who have been activating dynamic reform policies, won a resounding victory over a powerful faction of Stalinists at the party's 15th congress earlier this month.

The Soviet party actually supported Chairman Saarinen despite the fact that he has been critical of Russia's intervention in Czechoslovakia and of Moscow's efforts to re-establish monolithic unity to the international Communist

Mr. Saarinen has rejected to old slogans such as "dictatorship of the proletariat" and has campaigned for "peace, democracy and social-

The Communist party, while not in control of Finland, nevertheless is one of a five-party coalition and it holds 41 of the 200 seats in Parlia-

It has been suggested that Moscow's tolerance of the Finnish party's independence is the result of the Kremlin's need for making peace with as many of the world's Communist parties as possible while also maintaining cooperation with Finland

MOST FINNS BELIEVE that Russia definitely wants to keep Finland peaceful and out of the tensions of central Europe. Trouble in Finland is something the Russians have no desire for. A neutral Finland suits them fine.

Because of these factors it will be interesting to see how far liberalization will go within Finland's Communist party. Obviously the party members were not intimidated by what happened in Czechoslovakia,

De Gaulle Awaits Decision

Public opinion samplings in France indicate the Gaullist government does not have victory locked up in Sunday's referendum-plebiscite.

This is strange because the imposing figure of President Charles de Gaulle threatening to step down has, in the past, been sufficiently frightening to the French to assure victory for the Gaullists.

SURPRISINGLY THOUGH, when President De Gaulle announced on television April 10 that he would quit the presidency if the country voted "no," the old magical transformation did not occur.

Polls revealed a slight but immediate decline in support for the Gaullists.

Two basic issues are involved in the referendum-decentralization of the government structure and transformation of the senate.

A "yes" vote would authorize the creation of 22 new regions and replace the senate with a new council made up of representatives of the regional assemblis.

Opposition is showing up on three fronts: Voters who are in favor of regionalization but do not want to see abolition of the senate feel it is unfair to ask for a single answer on the

Others feel it is unnecessary to hold another balloting session less than a year after a national election gave resounding support to the

Resentment exists to the heavy-handed treatment of French voters in Gaullist attempts to win a victory that would change one out of every three provisions in their constitution.

President De Gaulle's favorite weapon - retirement - just may misfire this time around. Confusion, apathy and opposition are all contributing factors but the overriding element that is taking the sting out of his threat is Georges Pompidou.

WITH THE QUALIFIED and popular Mr. Pompidou waiting in the wings for President De Gaulle to leave the stage, departure of the aging star is not as terrifying to contemplate as can be turned against crime.

Reverberations from Sunday's voting will be felt outside the boundaries of France should President De Gaulle fail in another bid for

President Nixon has taken his first jab in the fight against crime by asking Congress to make it tougher on organized crime. He proposed additional manpower for "strike forces" being set up in 20 cities to coordinate activities of all federal agencies engaged in investigation of organized racketeering.

MR. NIXON'S suggestion that antitrust laws may be a weapon against syndicate crime bears some looking into. The President is searching for a method of breaking up syndicate operations rather than just picking off some of the leaders who can easily replaced.

In other minor recommendations, Mr. Nixon asked that corruption of police and local officials and operation of large-scale illegal gambling rings be made federal offenses.

Much to the disppointment of some of his supporters, no sweeping proposals were made to rid the nation of its "crime in the street."

Presumably these will come later with the details of his promised program for dealing with narcotics, obscenity and the rights of accused persons.

The special anticrime message to Congress was the President's opening thrust in keeping a campaign pledge to do something about law-

While evaluation of how he plans to meet the challenge of crime would be premature at this time-since he has three other major messages to deliver-Mr. Nixon made one point in his first volley. He is going to act decisively against crime and will not hesitate to ask for more money where he believes it is needed. His proposed $61 million crime-fighting budget is $25 million higher than for the last fiscal year.

THE IMPORTANCE he attaches to the attack on crime is illustrated by fact he is willing to request a whopping spending increase at a time when budget-cutting is the popular course to

Many Americans are equally concerned about increasing crime. Chances are they will lend

Military Economy

Antimilitarists specifically and budget-conscious Americans generally should be happy with the announced plans of the Nixon administration to close down or cut back 36 military installations and activities.

A savings of some $95 million annually has been predicted by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

There will be some adverse effects of the action as 3,028 civilians will lose their jobs and the economic ripples from this will reach out and touch many others.

The main consideration, of course, is that our defense not be materially weakened by the economy measures. A major feature of the revision is a planned realignment of North American air defense installations.

The President, as commander in chief of all our military forces, has the prime responsibility for the nation's safety. If he and Secretary of Defense Laird have found a way to cut some fat from the defense system without endangering the country, the amputation will be welcomed by most Americans.

VICTOR RIESEL

Labor Pension Funds Eyed

WASHINGTON - Almost any day, in the world's finest restaurants, or chi-chi hotels, or best town houses and suburban estates, a new class of millionaires hosts its new millieu, new clients and new political allies. The hosts and hosted are the consultants and directors. of today's $110 billion pension funds - tens of thousands of them run by unions.

Some are as clean as a scrub nurse's palm. Some are as dirty and looted or exploited as an old-fashioned waterfront crimp joint.

Now the "new" Attorney Victor Riesel General John Mitchell wants to probe into them to learn whether any of them are sources for Cosa Nostra money. This will take digging. There are 159,000 active funds on file with the Labor Dept.'s Office of Labor-Management and Welfare-Pension Reports. Some 33,300 are pension- and profit-sharing systems. Certainly the Mafia is in some of them - pocket deep.

JOHN MITCHELL plans no frontal attack on the funds or their new wealthy oligarchy made up of actuaries, barristers, and investment consultants. The attorney general will count on his anticrime task forces. There are eight now. Soon he hopes to put another 12 such task teams into the field. In each, working with the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime and Racketeering Section and other investigatory agencies, will be men from the Labor Department. But the Labor Dept. welfare and pension reporting compliance office has but 175 probers and back-up personnel. Now Mr. Mitchell and his crusading Henry Peterson, the racketeering section chief, want a Labor Dept. team of four men attached to each strike force.

So with the cooperation of Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Services, Willie Usery, a budget was developed to put 88 new investigators into the field and back them up with 42 researchers and clerks.

This will take some petty cash — $2 million to be exact, for the 1970 fiscal year - about $700,000 less than was stolen (according to the General Accounting Office) from the New York City poverty program. Now it's up to Congress.

If the solons do give the Labor Dept. the $2 million, its enforcement office under Frank Kleiler will computerize its files. Thus the field men will be able to process the data piling up in 51,000 union reports on their general treasuries and three times that many pension funds. In all, some laser light will be thrown on the accumulation of some $30 billion directly or indirectly under union supervision.

WITHOUT THIS INFORMATION, the national labor leaders and the Justice Dept. and its organized crime section can have the investigational agility of a herd of dinosaurs. There are small locals inside the AFL-CIO, independent unions of recognized status, racket unions operated by veterans of Murder, Inc., units fully chartered by the states and the Cosa Nostra, which have legal pension funds.

There is one independent union of 20,000 members which has rolled up a $125 million fund. Others with $10 to $15 million are garden variety stuff.

There are some 10 or 12 investigations and grand jury proceedings against those who have attempted to loot the $400-million Chicago Teamsters Pension Fund. Some are now on trial in New York City.

Some of them are friends, allies and relatives of brutal Cosa Nostra captains and button men in the Luchese combine. Some of the Laborers pension funds have been infiltrated by the Mafiosi types. There are scores of other locals whose funds are dominated by the mobs who find them the juiciest legal pork barrel in which they've ever wallowed. There are finders fees running into the millions for loans, legal charges, investments, stock purchases, real estate deals and even printing supplies.

ELECTRONIC DATA processing would uncover the looter like characters in an Off-

Broadway "play." But the new manpower and computers will be handled gingerly by the Federals. They will concentrate on organized crime. They don't want to leave themselves open to charges of snooping into unions. The record shows that some 86 to 90 union officials annually embezzle anywhere from $500 to $15,000. A computer could project what sort of business agent, or office help, will steal how much money in coming years. Labor chiefs say that this would be the norm in any field where there are so many (500,000) officials.

None other than AFL-CIO President George Meany has charged the old Labor Dept. with "snooping." He has revived an old antisnooping committee which is heading for a sharp talk with the genial George Shultz. Mr. Meany believes that the Labor Dept. has been harassing the movement. His colleague Joe Curran, table-hammering president of the National Maritime Union, swifter of temper, shorter of patience, charges Labor Dept, enforcement chief Frank Kleiler with heading a "Gestapo-type agency.'

But what's in a name? If Congress comes up with that $2 million, it won't be spent on catching the penny ante bill-diggers. The new teams will go after the crowd now "legally" exploiting the swiftest growing ($8 to $10 billion annually) pool of liquid cash since the poor dollar was in-

There is no problem about materials for a course or two because there is a considerable and growing body of literature available to every college and university.

RAYMOND MOLEY

Blacks Eye

Enemies

It's a pity that the introduction of black studies in so many institutions should come at a moment when militancy among both white and black students is rampant and when those dissidents have so many and such diverse objectives. For long ago there should have been a place in the curriculum for courses in Negro

The purpose of such studies should have been twofold: first, to put the subject into the context of American history and culture; more significantly, to provide for Negroes that pride in history and culture.

MOREOVER, THERE IS nothing incompatible in seeking at the same time two objectives: first, to provide for the assimilation of the Negro in our common life; second, to encourage him to learn more about his own heritage. America is a melting pot and in the Americanization movement of a generation ago there was such at twofold purpose in educational work among European immigrants.

But in our history books and in the content of our teaching in the past there was plenty of attention to slavery and the tragic struggle among the states before it was abolished. But only scant attention was given to the slaves themselves and the part they have played since their emancipation. This, as we see now, was a grave omission.

But there are serious practical problems in launching such courses now in the context of the many troubles that beset our educational system. These problems are described in a letter I have received from a professional friend in one of our large universities who himself attempted to work with his students in giving a course in black history and culture. He says in

"No, I shall certainly not participate further in the black studies field simply because it has become too militant and too political. Most militant young blacks today will not accept anything on the subject from a white person on the grounds that it is not valid. The question of race relations in the United States is a painful

On the other hand, it is humiliating and demeaning to fine black scholars to be told that they are wanted to teach black history rather than to utilize their talents in all fields of interest in which any normally good scholar may wish to operate.

"Some of these courses could be of special value to idealistic young blacks and to white students as well."

But, he continues, "These young people are as badly in need of a general education covering the whole range of human culture as are any other students. The setting up of large black studies programs, including many courses, perhaps a separate department or college, can have two unfortunate consequences at the present time.

First, if students take large numbers of specialized courses, they will not acquire the general education they so greatly need. Second, as you have suggested, I doubt if there is enough material to justify thorough and sound treatment beyond a very few courses. No student, black or white, is going to finish with what appears to be a second-class program or a second-class degree.

"FINALLY, THERE ARE NOT enough firstrate black scholars to man many such courses and it would be a disaster for the prestigious universities suddenly to pull these few qualified teachers away from positions in less attractive institutions.'

The fact is that the whole movement has become so entangled with militancy that there is grave danger that such courses, so hastily contrived and taught, will be nothing but means of revolutionary coercion generally.

There can be little free inquiry in such an atmosphere as prevails on many campuses at the present time. In short, the enemies of black studies are not the college authorities, who hasten to find peace in compliance, but the very people who are so vociferous in demanding such instruction.

wife relationship, it is also which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all." Eph. 1:22, 23.

Christ as the head of the church is one thing. To actually accept Him as head is another. Most people in the religious world today will say that they believe that Christ is the head of the church. However, these same people will show that they do not respect the authority of Christ. They will guilty of doing many things that are completely without the authority of Christ. In fact, some are even saying that we do not need authority for even we do in religion what They seem to think we have a right to do just as we clearly seen why that there is so much confusion and division in the religious world. The confusion does not come from Christ but is rather a product of man. Man feels that he has a right to do anything he wants to do in religion and then some how or other, he expects Christ to be happy with the things he has done. Friends, this not the way that the Lord's church operates. Christ is the head of His church. When Christ wants the church to do something, he g i v e s instructions (through His Word, the Bible) and the church obeys, If all religious people would accept this fact, we could see the sudden death of denominationalism. We must learn to accept Christ as the head of the church. His will must be obeyed. Have you submitted to His will. Are you a part of His church? Why not obey His will today?

Oak Glen's Offset Newspaper Operation Viewed By Tri-State District Journalists

By LUCILLE HUSTON

One of today's most modern newspaper production methods is being used by Oak Glen High School journalism staff, and is the envy of other student editors in the tri-state district.

A group of the teen-age newspaper "executives," who have been meeting in monthly conferences at The Review, visited the offset printing operation at the Oak Glen school near New Manchester last week and came away greatly impress-

the complete process—from the writing of the news to the final printed copy.

OFFSET PRINTING is a method of engraving each full page onto a metal cylinder directly from a negative photograph of a "proof," or typewritten page. The older method used by The Review, is to cast all the news and advertising into lead type and assemble it into page forms which are subsequently recast into lead cylinders for use on

Two typewriter-like machines-Varitypersare used by the Oak Glen staff members to produce the headline and news story copy. These strips of papers are assembled as pages and photographed. A metal engraving is then made from the negative. The metal engraving is placed on the cylindrical press, and the issue is ready to roll.

Editors of the area high school papers have

Ann Koteski of Oak Glen who selects the proper letters by use of a metal bar. The device provides automatic column spacing.

Other area papers are Midland's "Lincoln Logs," East Liverpool's "Keramos Echo" and Beaver Local's "Tales."

Some of the papers are mimeographed, others are produced on school electronic duplicators and still others are published at printing job shops. The Oak Glen is the most up-to-date and complete publishing operation of them all, how-

The current discussions on writing, feature stories, page layouts, headline styles, advertising, censorship and other matters have proven not only interesting to the young editors at the Review conferences, but have also given the Review staff some surprising discoveries of what the students are doing with their publications and provided some useful ideas for improving the daily oper-

SURVIVAL — Business Today is a publication edited by students of Princeton University with a Time-Life quality. A lead editorial in their first anniversary issue, (Spring, 1969) endorses a policy of national "survival." They say unless there is survival there is zero. Business Today should sell the survival thesis to more young Americans on the fence . . . between "doing" and "hoping" for survival.

BRONZE POWER - Ethnic nationalism of Mexican-American youth is on the rise. Not anxious to be coupled with militant blacks, the "Chicanos" are advocating their own brand of revolution. "Bronze race," bronze culture" "spiritual independence" are some words being used to whip up emotional frenzy. Great emphasis is placed on the "loss of homeland" that accompanied Mexican defeat in the Mexican war of 1846. School walkouts in five Southwest states on Mexican independence Day, Sept. 16, is part of the master plan to achieve the spiritual separateness that is being promoted. A premise is . . . we were here first, we're not the foreigners, the Angolas are. The Chicanos are also pushing increased usage of the Spanish language by members. Painfully aware of the snowballing conscience drive on the part of blacks, the bronze and the red are now saying: "Just a minute, U.S. power structure, we were here first. How about movie and TV roles as doctors and lawyers? What about magazine and newspaper equal time for OUR problems?" They have a pointed point that dismays who would lump all the non-white problems under a CHICKEN . . . A DIRTY WORD? - Even dovelike protesters use it as a derisive description for ineffectual conduct. Chicken raisers and marketing folk worry about the public relations involved. Chicken has a soft sound, and a do-nothing-for-you feeling is a worry of the pushers, includ-ing the wildly expanding in-the-bucket-and-basket chains. Simple fact is that chicken raising techniques are wild, simply wild, and production is at an all-time high. Prices are accordingly the best. Beef has a masculine, virile image. Even lamb has the Los Angeles Rams to help its fearsome approach to nutrition. But lo, the poor chicken. PR people are toying with reviving interest in and knowledge of cockfighting. Anyone who has ever seen, even read about the bravery and dedication of fighting cocks will think twice before he misuses "chicken" as a cop-out and fold-up word. Trouble is, a successful promotion of the fighting cock might bring forth a "tough" image of chicken in the basket and/or bucket. Some of the fry chefs are already living up to the

This is the time of year when every fisherman's heart begins to beat just a little faster as he thinks about going out and reeling in the big one. There should be plenty of big ones to catch this year with stocking projects well un-

If one of your fisherman friends tells you to go plant a tree this year, don't just laugh in his face, especially if you're looking for ways to assure yourself of a plentiful supply of bait.

Fishermen who plant trees will make sure they have at least one catalpa tree in the yard, for this is the source of the long green catalpa worms considered a delectable dish

by many species of fresh water fish. Catalpa worms are the larval stage of sphinx moths. They often grow three inches long and are found only on catalpa trees. They are harvested by shaking the tree and picking up the worms that fall to the ground.

Keeping them is easy. A box with catalpa leaves in the bottom works fine. To save them for later use, put them in a can with some cornmeal and keep the can refrigerated. They can be strung on the hook like an ordinary fishing

A second easy way to get bait is to go worm hunting during early spring and summer storms. At night during a heavy rain storm, earth worms will come out of the ground and lie on top of the grass or just underneath. Many of them will travel, moving out onto concrete driveways and curbs. All you need do is don a raincoat, grab a can and flashlight and pick up a good start on your summer's bait supply. During prolonged storms, you can repeatedly return to the same driveway, finding a fresh supply of worms

talk that worms are going out of style as trout bait. There was a time not long ago — when you were out of worms, you were out of bait! Either you bummed more worms from the other fellas or you quit fishing. Not any more.

Today, fishermen who find digging worms not only distasteful, but a pain in the back, need only take a quick trek to the market and pick up all the trout bait they want. Bread, cheese, whole kernel corn and even balogna from the grocery shelves solves the problem.

Somehow it just doesn't seem ethical to catch noble, glamorous trout on a hunk of cheese, a kernel of corn, or a dough ball, but there are fishermen who care less about disgrace and more about results. The purist who has a distaste for the use of worms must be positively horrified at catching trout on groceries.

Maybe trout are becoming more cosmopolitan in their tastes. And then again it might be only one of those temporary mod kicks which most anglers prefer to believe. Worms will never go out of style as the best all around bait. Even trout can get sick and tired of all that meat and no

PENNSYLVANIA'S Secretary of Forests and Waters, Maurice K. Goddard, announced last week that Pennsylvania State Parks are not open to hunting during the Spring "gobbler" season May 3-10.

Spring use of State Parks, predominately composed of family groups, is growing in volume each year. The public is widely dispersed throughout State park areas; hiking, boating, fishing, camping, and pursuing other outdoor recreational activities. of the non-hunting public, it has been our continuing policy to close all State park lands to hunting during the Spring, Summer and early Fall seasons.

and February each year.

IF YOU KNEW HOW A fish felt when he got out of bed you'd have a better chance of catching him!

The problem, of course, is to diagnose fish moods. Since most anglers can't converse with them (although some claim this distinction), it's difficult to learn how fish greet the day. Knowing what factors influence fish behavior can add to your angling success. Sky condition, water temperature and water color all determine a fish's disposition. Successful anglers read this mood and match it with the correct casting technique. In muddied or brown water fish are less likely to venture from their normal lies. They're reluctant to move any distance to investigate a lure or bait. This means an angler must cast almos directly over the fish to get his attention. Casts should be more frequent with less distance between much different from fishermen at this time. They're lethargie and won't move about any more than is necessary. Again, this calls for more frequent casts to place the lure near enough to excite the fish. Cool water stimulates fish, causing them to move more. Anglers get by with fewer casts covering more water with each.

Sky conditions, particularly during warm months, also in-fluence how fish act. If the sun comes up hot, fish stop moving at dawn, holding in one lie until evening. More casts are needed to put the lure in favorable areas. However, if dawn arrives with an overcast sky and a hint of light showers, fish will often feed on through the rain. Consequently, fewer casts are needed to connect with these care-

-Junior Editors Quiz on-SEA SHELLS

QUESTION: Where do sea shells come from?

ANSWER: When we see a pretty empty shell on a beach, we are apt to forget that an interesting little animal once built it. These shellmakers are mollusks - small, soft, boneless creatures. Such a mollusk hatches from the egg as a free swimming larva or veliger (1). After awhile, he settles to the bottom (2) with his wing-like paddles gone. He looks tempting to many hungry predators, but he protects himself with an ingenious system. His soft body is covered with a fleshy cape or mantle (3). The mantle is able to extract carbonate of lime from the sea water and deposit it in a strong hard material or shell. As the young mollusk keeps growing, adding larger spirals to the tiny shell he carried as a veliger, the mantle keeps covering the new spirals with shell (2). Then, when danger threatens, the animal can pull inside his shell, closing the entrance with a hard plate or trap door which he carries around attached to the end of his body. Some mollusks, like the clam, build shells of other shapes, but the material is deposited by the mantle in the same general way.

Joanne Laperle of Cumberland, R. I., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Wanted: Two Minutes Of Thought

It isn't very often a newspaper asks its readers for a favor.

But it isn't very often a community finds itself in a near - crisis with its schools. We ask every qualified voter in the East Liverpool School District to give two minutes of serious thought some time before May 6 about the two proposed levy renewals. *There are various reasons why one might vote against the two levies. The whole nation is currently caught up in a resistance to new taxes - but these two issues are not new. Internal problems in the school system have caused community concern - but they are not an issue in this election. Some people claim they cannot afford them-but someone afforded school taxes to give these same people their education when they were young. The right to a proper public education has been a long American tradition. It is vital to a democratic system of self - government. It has been a responsibility well met in East Liverpool throughout the city's history.

We ask the voters of this school district to spend two minutes contemplating what the $679,000 of local funds plus the state foundation monies which relate to these local funds mean to the education of our young

We urge anyone who believes this financing -three-fourths of the school budget-is not necessary to vote against the levies.

But we believe that two minutes of honest thinking will bring a true citizen's decision to vote the other way.

Park Potential

Now that spring is truly upon us, a good way to make a renewed acquaintance with this welcome season would be to visit Beaver Creek State Park Sunday when open house and special flower tours will be offered.

Division of Parks and Recreation personnel will provide information and guidance to special sites which the visitor might miss on a casual tour of the creek area.

The visit should serve as a reminder of the beauty of the wooded valley and of the need for continuing efforts to preserve this valuable natural resource and enlarge it to meet its full recreation potential.

Finnish Reds Break Soviet Grip

Czechoslovakia has been hammered back into subservience to the Soviet Union, for how long no one knows.

Russia's repressiveness has resulted in the ouster of Alexander Dubcek, who tried to bring freedoms to his people, and the granting of Kremlin-controlled power to Gustav Husak, looked on as Moscow's man.

But while Czechoslovakia was being prevented with force from becoming, in any way, independent of Russia, the Finnish Communists fought themselves free from Soviet domination for the first time in their 50 years of existence.

AARNE SAARINEN, chairman of the Finnish Communist party, and his young liberal Communists, who have been activating dynamic reform policies, won a resounding victory over a powerful faction of Stalinists at the party's 15th congress earlier this month.

The Soviet party actually supported Chairman Saarinen despite the fact that he has been critical of Russia's intervention in Czechoslovakia and of Moscow's efforts to re-establish monolithic unity to the international Communist

Mr. Saarinen has rejected to old slogans such as "dictatorship of the proletariat" and has campaigned for "peace, democracy and social-

The Communist party, while not in control of Finland, nevertheless is one of a five-party coalition and it holds 41 of the 200 seats in Parlia-

It has been suggested that Moscow's tolerance of the Finnish party's independence is the result of the Kremlin's need for making peace with as many of the world's Communist parties as possible while also maintaining cooperation

MOST FINNS BELIEVE that Russia definitely wants to keep Finland peaceful and out of the tensions of central Europe. Trouble in Finland is something the Russians have no desire for. A neutral Finland suits them fine.

Because of these factors it will be interesting to see how far liberalization will go within Finland's Communist party. Obviously the party members were not intimidated by what happened in Czechoslovakia,

De Gaulle Awaits Decision

Public opinion samplings in France indicate the Gaullist government does not have victory locked up in Sunday's referendum-plebiscite.

This is strange because the imposing figure of President Charles de Gaulle threatening to step down has, in the past, been sufficiently frightening to the French to assure victory for SURPRISINGLY THOUGH, when President De Gaulle announced on television April 10 that he would quit the presidency if the country voted "no," the old magical transformation did not occur.

Polls revealed a slight but immediate decline in support for the Gaullists.

Two basic issues are involved in the referendum-decentralization of the government structure and transformation of the senate. A "yes" vote would authorize the creation of 22 new regions and replace the senate with a new council made up of representatives of the regional assemblis. Opposition is showing up on three fronts: Voters who are in favor of regionalization but do not want to see abolition of the senate feel it is unfair to ask for a single answer on the

Others feel it is unnecessary to hold another balloting session less than a year after a national election gave resounding support to the

Resentment exists to the heavy-handed treatment of French voters in Gaullist attempts to win a victory that would change one out of every three provisions in their constitution.

President De Gaulle's favorite weapon - retirement - just may misfire this time around. Confusion, apathy and opposition are all contributing factors but the overriding element that is taking the sting out of his threat is Georges Pompidou.

WITH THE QUALIFIED and popular Mr. Pompidou waiting in the wings for President De Gaulle to leave the stage, departure of the aging star is not as terrifying to contemplate as Reverberations from Sunday's voting will be felt outside the boundaries of France should President De Gaulle fail in another bid for blind loyalty.

Hitting Back At Crime

President Nixon has taken his first jab in the fight against crime by asking Congress to make it tougher on organized crime.

He proposed additional manpower for "strike forces" being set up in 20 cities to coordinate activities of all federal agencies engaged in investigation of organized racketeering.

MR. NIXON'S suggestion that antitrust laws may be a weapon against syndicate crime bears some looking into. The President is searching for a method of breaking up syndicate operations rather than just picking off some of the leaders who can easily replaced.

In other minor recommendations, Mr. Nixon asked that corruption of police and local officials and operation of large-scale illegal gambling rings be made federal offenses

Much to the disppointment of some of his supporters, no sweeping proposals were made to rid the nation of its "crime in the street."

Presumably these will come later with the details of his promised program for dealing with narcotics, obscenity and the rights of accused persons.

The special anticrime message to Congress was the President's opening thrust in keeping a campaign pledge to do something about lawlessness.

While evaluation of how he plans to meet the challenge of crime would be premature at this time-since he has three other major messages to deliver-Mr. Nixon made one point in his

He is going to act decisively against crime and will not hesitate to ask for more money where he believes it is needed. His proposed $61 million crime-fighting budget is $25 million higher than for the last fiscal year.

THE IMPORTANCE he attaches to the attack on crime is illustrated by fact he is willing to request a whopping spending increase at a time when budget-cutting is the popular course to support to Mr. Nixon's programs, even with the additional spending, in the hope that the tide can be turned against crime.

Military Economy

Antimilitarists specifically and budget-conscious Americans generally should be happy with the announced plans of the Nixon administration to close down or cut back 36 military installations and activities.

A savings of some $95 million annually has been predicted by Secretary of Defense Melvin

There will be some adverse effects of the action as 3,028 civilians will lose their jobs and the economic ripples from this will reach out and touch many others.

The main consideration, of course, is that our defense not be materially weakened by the economy measures. A major feature of the revision is a planned realignment of North American air defense installations. The President, as commander in chief of all our military forces, has the prime responsibility for the nation's safety. If he and Secretary of Defense Laird have found a way to cut some fat from the defense system without endangering the country, the amputation will be welcomed by most Americans.

Labor Pension Funds Eyed

WASHINGTON — Almost any day, in the world's finest restaurants, or chi-chi hotels, or best town houses and suburban estates, a new class of millionaires hosts its new millieu, new clients and new political al-lies. The hosts and hosted are the consultants and directors of today's $110 billion pension funds - tens of thousands of them run by unions.

Some are as clean as a scrub nurse's palm. Some are as dirty and looted or exploited as an old-fashioned waterfront crimp joint.

Now the "new" Attorney Victor Riesel General John Mitchell wants to probe into them to learn whether any of them are sources for Cosa Nostra money. This will take digging. There are 159,000 active funds on file with the Labor Dept.'s Office of Labor-Management and Welfare-Pension Reports. Some 33,300 are pension- and profit-sharing systems. Certainly the Mafia is in some of them - pocket deep.

JOHN MITCHELL plans no frontal attack on the funds or their new wealthy oligarchy made up of actuaries, barristers, and investment consultants. The attorney general will count on his anticrime task forces. There are eight now. Soon he hopes to put another 12 such task teams into the field. In each, working with the FBI, the Internal Revenue Service, the Justice Dept.'s Organized Crime and Racketeering Section and other investigatory agencies, will be men from the Labor Department. But the Labor Dept. welfare and pension reporting compliance office has but 175 probers and back-up personnel. Now Mr. Mitchell and his crusading Henry Peterson, the racketeering section chief, want a Labor Dept. team of four men attached to each strike force.

So with the cooperation of Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Services, Willie Usery, a budget was developed to put 88 new investigators into the field and back them up with 42 researchers and clerks.

This will take some petty cash - $2 million to be exact, for the 1970 fiscal year - about $700,000 less than was stolen (according to the General Accounting Office) from the New York City poverty program. Now it's up to Congress.

If the solons do give the Labor Dept. the $2 million, its enforcement office under Frank Kleiler will computerize its files. Thus the field men will be able to process the data piling up in 51,000 union reports on their general treasuries and three times that many pension funds. In all, some laser light will be thrown on the accumulation of some $30 billion directly or indirectly under union supervision.

WITHOUT THIS INFORMATION, the national labor leaders and the Justice Dept. and its

organized crime section can have the investigational agility of a herd of dinosaurs. There are small locals inside the AFL-CIO, independent unions of recognized status, racket unions operated by veterans of Murder, Inc., units fully chartered by the states and the Cosa Nostra, which have legal pension funds.

There is one independent union of 20,000 members which has rolled up a $125 million fund. Others with $10 to $15 million are garden

There are some 10 or 12 investigations and grand jury proceedings against those who have attempted to loot the $400-million Chicago Teamsters Pension Fund. Some are now on trial in New York City.

Some of them are friends, allies and relatives of brutal Cosa Nostra captains and button men in the Luchese combine. Some of the Laborers pension funds have been infiltrated by the Mafiosi types. There are scores of other locals whose funds are dominated by the mobs who find them the juiciest legal pork barrel in which they've ever wallowed. There are finders fees running into the millions for loans, legal charges, investments, stock purchases, real estate deals and even printing supplies.

ELECTRONIC DATA processing would unr the looter like characters in an Off-Broadway "play."

But the new manpower and computers will be handled gingerly by the Federals. They will concentrate on organized crime. They don't want to leave themselves open to charges of snooping into unions. The record shows that some 86 to 90 union officials annually embezzle anywhere from $500 to $15,000. A computer could project what sort of business agent, or office help, will steal how much money in coming years. Labor chiefs say that this would be the norm in any field where there are so many (500,000) officials.

None other than AFL-CIO President George Meany has charged the old Labor Dept. with "spooping." He has revived an old antisnooping committee which is heading for a sharp talk with the genial George Shultz. Mr. Meany believes that the Labor Dept. has been harassing the movement. His colleague Joe Curran, table-hammering president of the National Maritime Union, swifter of temper, shorter of patience, charges Labor Dept. enforcement chief Frank Kleiler with heading a "Gestapo-type agency.

But what's in a name? If Congress comes up with that $2 million, it won't be spent on catching the penny ante bill-diggers. The new teams will go after the crowd now "legally" exploiting the swiftest growing ($8 to $10 billion annually) pool of liquid cash since the poor dollar was in-

It's a pity that the introduction of black studies in so many institutions should come at a moment when militancy among both white and black students is rampant and when those dissidents have so many and such diverse objectives. For long ago there should have been a place in the curriculum for courses in Negro

The purpose of such studies should have been twofold: first, to put the subject into the context of American history and culture; more significantly, to provide for Negroes that pride in their race and its contributions so essential to their self-respect. Like every ethnic group in our society, this one seeks identification with and understanding of its past.

There is no problem about materials for a

MOREOVER, THERE IS nothing incompatible in seeking at the same time two objectives: first, to provide for the assimilation of the Negro in our common life; second, to encourage him to learn more about his own heritage. America is a melting pot and in the Americanization movement of a generation ago there was such at twofold purpose in educational work

But in our history books and in the content of our teaching in the past there was plenty of attention to slavery and the tragic struggle among the states before it was abolished. But only scant attention was given to the slaves themselves and the part they have played since their emancipation. This, as we see now, was a grave omission.

But there are serious practical problems in launching such courses now in the context of the many troubles that beset our educational system. These problems are described in a let-thing on the subject from a white person on the grounds that it is not valid. The question of race relations in the United States is a painful On the other hand, it is humiliating and demeaning to fine black scholars to be told that they are wanted to teach black history rather than to utilize their talents in all fields of interest in which any normally good scholar may wish to operate. "Some of these courses could be of special value to idealistic young blacks and to white students as well."

But, he continues, "These young people are as badly in need of a general education covering the whole range of human culture as are any other students. The setting up of large black studies programs, including many courses, perhaps a separate department or college, can have two unfortunate consequences at the present time.

First, if students take large numbers of specialized courses, they will not acquire the general education they so greatly need. Second, as you have suggested, I doubt if there is enough material to justify thorough and sound treatment beyond a very few courses. No student, black or white, is going to finish with what appears to be a second-class program or a second-class degree.

"FINALLY, THERE ARE NOT enough firstrate black scholars to man many such courses and it would be a disaster for the prestigious universities suddenly to pull these few qualified teachers away from positions in less attractive institutions.'

The fact is that the whole movement has become so entangled with militancy that there is grave danger that such courses, so hastily contrived and taught, will be nothing but means of revolutionary coercion generally.

There can be little free inquiry in such an atmosphere as prevails on many campuses at the present time. In short, the enemies of black studies are not the college authorities, who hasten to find peace in compliance, but the very people who are so vociferous in demanding such instruction.

Synod Elects Moderator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)-Dr. Theodore Linder of Cincinnati was elected United Presbyterian Synod moderator Friday during the church group's 89th annual session here.

Dr. Lindner, a teacher of special education, succeeds the Rev. James Walker of Cleveland, who in his final address to the Synod Friday told delegates the church must continue its bold missionary action if it is to "meet the challenges before us in the 1970s."

The 72 elected representative pastors and laymen from 690 Ohio churches attending the twoday meeting are expected to act on 1970 budget proposals that call for a mission expenditure of some $1,037,000

To meet that budget, the Synod is being asked to set guidelines for mission giving by local congregations.

Delegates attending the meet ing represent some 285,000 Ohio United Presbyterian Church members.

MOMENT OF MEDITATION To say that we accept

CHRIST, THE HEAD!

In our article last week we called attention to a statement of the Apostle Paul in Eph. 5:25-27. In these verses Paul makes a lesson about Christ and His church by using the husband and wife relationship. We pointed out the fact that as a man is to have just one wife, so Christ has just one church. In our article today we would like to point out that Christ is the head of His church.

Paul tells us that the wife is intended by God to be subject to their own husbands. The husband is the head of the wife. (This is also a lesson that is much needed in the world today). Even as this is true of the husband wife relationship, it is also true of Christ and His bride, the church. Christ is the head of the church. Notice this passage. "And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church,

Christ as the head of the church is one thing. To actually accept Him as head is another. Most people in the religious world today will say that they believe that Christ is the head of the church. However, these same people will show that they do not respect the authority of Christ. They will be guilty of doing many things that are completely without the authority of Christ. In fact, some are even saying that we do not even need authority for what we do in religion They seem to think we have a right to do just as we clearly seen why that there is so much confusion and division in the religious world. The confusion does not come from Christ but is rather a product of man. Man feels that he has a right to do anything he wants to do in religion and then some how or other, he expects Christ to be happy with the things he has done. Friends, this is not the way that the church operates. Lord's Christ is the head of His church. When Christ wants the church to do something, he g i v e s instructions (through His Word, the Bible) and the church obeys. If all religious people would accept this fact, we could see the sudden death of denominationalism. We must learn to accept Christ as the head of the church. His will must be obeyed. Have you submitted to His will. Are you a part of His church? Why not obey His will today?

The fallacy of this reasoning can be seen in the fact that as our own head directs our body, so Christ, the head, directs the body (the church). My hand can not move without orders from my head. The church cannot move without orders from Christ, its head

The Model

"Now I'm big-with a hat like Mommy's!" Amy was really full of herself when we went shopping yesterday.

I was amused, too, as I watched her imitate her mother on the way to church the next day. She really had that walk down to a "T."

I'm glad her mother is her model. She couldn't have a better one. Mary's love of God is reflected in everything she does. Her happiness in serving God and His church is contagious. I should know!

When we were married, I was a sometime church-goer. Now, I teach Sunday School, sing in the choir and am chairman of the building committee. I find it deeply satisfying to know that my church needs me.

Every church needs the dedicated effort of its members. Experience the

Oak Glen's Offset Newspaper Operation Viewed By Tri-State District Journalists

By LUCILLE HUSTON

One of today's most modern newspaper production methods is being used by Oak Glen High School journalism staff, and is the envy of other student editors in the tri-state district.

A group of the teen-age newspaper "executives," who have been meeting in monthly conferences at The Review, visited the offset printing operation at the Oak Glen school near New Manchester last week and came away greatly impress-

Mrs. Ruth Shilling, adviser to the school paper, demonstrated the equipment and explained the complete process—from the writing of the news to the final printed copy.

OFFSET PRINTING is a method of engraving each full page onto a metal cylinder directly from a negative photograph of a "proof," or typewritten page. The older method used by The Review, is to cast all the news and advertising into lead type and assemble it into page forms which are subsequently recast into lead cylinders for use on the press.

Two typewriter-like machines—Varitypers—are used by the Oak Glen staff members to produce the headline and news story copy. These strips of papers are assembled as pages and photographed. A metal engraving is then made from the negative. The metal engraving is placed on the cylindrical press, and the issue is ready to roll.

Editors of the area high school papers have been meeting each month with Glenn Waight, Review editor, to discuss problems, exchange ideas and offer constructive criticism of each others' papers.

THE FULL staffs of the school publications vary from eight to as many as 30. Names of the papers often are linked to the school symbols for example "Bear Facts" at Oak Glen's Golden Bears and "Tiger Rag" for Wellsville's Tigers, or utilize the school colors, such as Southern Local's "Blue and Gold." Other area papers are Midland's "Lincoln Logs," East Liverpool's "Keramos Echo" and Beaver Local's "Tales."

Some of the papers are mimeographed, others are produced on school electronic duplicators and still others are published at printing job shops. The Oak Glen is the most up-to-date and complete publishing operation of them all, however

MRS. SHILLING credits C. Victor Hughes, former business manager of The Review, as a great help to her in establishing the Oak Glen system. Hughes served as a substitute teacher on occasions at Oak Glen after his retirement from the newspaper.

The current discussions on writing, feature stories, page layouts, headline styles, advertising, censorship and other matters have proven not only interesting to the young editors at the Review conferences, but have also given the Review staff some surprising discoveries of what the students are doing with their publications and provided some useful ideas for improving the daily operation.

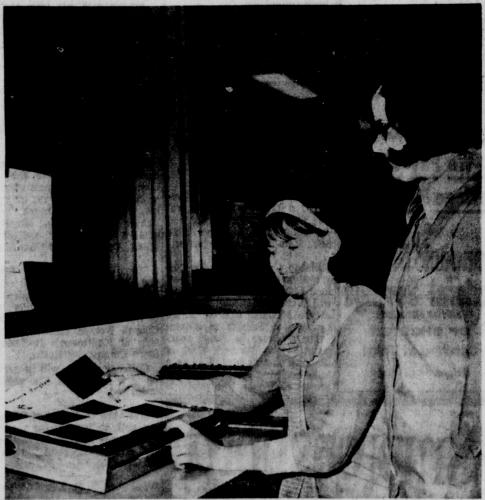

A headline tape from a Varityper on which the visiting journalists practiced is examined by Debbie Hlopek of Midland, left, Julie McCord of Southern Local, center, and Janet Lewis of Wellsville.

A story is set on a VariTyper by Mary Ann Koteski of Oak Glen who selects the proper letters by use of a metal bar. The device provides automatic column spacing.

Chester Harris and Becky Silliman of Beaver Local examine the finished pages of "Bear Facts," Oak Glen issue printed during the demonstration at the school.

Sharon Yost of Oak Glen, seated, and Sharon Calhoun of Beaver Local discuss a "paste up" of a page which is photographed to make the metal engraving.

Dave Shilling of Oak Glen explains how the headline machine prints from a dial as Vickie Baker of Wellsville watches.

Finished pages roll from the offset press under the guidance of Jack McDevitt, Oak Glen teacher, as Janet Lewis and Julie Mc-Cord observe. McDevitt has had experience in a print shop.

Mrs. Ruth Shilling, Oak Glen High School journalism adviser, cleans a metal engraving as Nadine Vuynovich of Midland looks on.

BRONZE POWER - Ethnic nationalism of Mexican-American youth is on the rise. Not anxious to be coupled with militant blacks, the "Chicanos" are advocating their own brand of revolution. "Bronze race," bronze culture" and "spiritual independence" are some words being used to whip up emotional frenzy. Great emphasis is placed on the "loss of homeland" that accompanied Mexican defeat in the Mexican war of 1846. School walkouts in five Southwest states on Mexican independence Day, Sept. 16, is part of the master plan to achieve the spiritual separateness that is being promoted. A premise is . . . we were here first, we're not the foreigners, the Angolas are. The Chicanos are also pushing increased usage of the Spanish language by members. Painfully aware of the snowballing conscience drive on the part of blacks, the bronze and the red are now saying: "Just a minute, U.S. power structure, we were here first. How about movie and TV roles as doctors and lawyers? What about magazine and newspaper equal time for OUR problems?" They have a pointed point that dismays those who would lump all the non-white problems under a

Chicken raisers and marketing folk worry about the public relations involved. Chicken has a soft sound, and a do-nothing-for-you feeling is a worry of the pushers, including the wildly expanding in-the-bucket-and-basket chains. Simple fact is that chicken raising techniques are wild, simply wild, and production is at an all-time high. Prices are accordingly the best. Beef has a masculine, virile image. Even lamb has the Los Angeles Rams to help its fearsome approach to nutrition. But lo, the poor chicken. PR people are toying with reviving interest in and knowledge of cockfighting. Anyone who has ever seen, even read about the bravery and dedication of fighting cocks will think twice before he misuses "chicken" as a cop-out and fold-up word.

Trouble is, a successful promotion of the fighting cock might bring forth a "tough" image of chicken in the basket and/or bucket. Some of the fry chefs are already living up to the

by many species of fresh water fish. Catalpa worms are the larval stage of sphinx moths. They often grow three inches long and are found only on catalpa trees. They are harvested by shaking the tree and picking up the worms that fall to the ground.

Keeping them is easy. A box with catalpa leaves in the bottom works fine. To save them for later use, put them in a can with some cornmeal and keep the can refrigerated. They can be strung on the hook like an ordinary fishing

A second easy way to get bait is to go worm hunting during early spring and summer storms. At night during a heavy rain storm, earth worms will come out of the und and lie on top of the grass or just underneath, Many of them will travel, moving out onto concrete driveways and curbs. All you need do is don a raincoat, grab a can and flashlight and pick up a good start on your summer's bait supply. During prolonged storms, you can repeatedly return to the same driveway, finding a fresh supply of worms

talk that worms are going out of style as trout bait. There was a time not long ago — when you were out of worms, you were out of bait! Either you bummed more worms from the other fellas or you quit fishing. Not any more.

Today, fishermen who find digging worms not only distasteful, but a pain in the back, need only take a quick trek to the market and pick up all the trout bait they want.

Bread, cheese, whole kernel corn and even balogna from the grocery shelves solves the problem.

the grocery shelves solves the problem.

Somehow it just doesn't seem ethical to catch noble, glamorous trout on a hunk of cheese, a kernel of corn, or dough ball, but there are fishermen who care less about disgrace and more about results. The purist who has a distaste for the use of worms must be positively horrified at catching trout on groceries.

Maybe trout are becoming more cosmopolitan in their tastes. And then again it might be only one of those temporary mod kicks which most anglers prefer to believe. Worms will never go out of style as the best all around bait. Even trout can get sick and tired of all that meat and no

Spring use of State Parks, predominately composed of family groups, is growing in volume each year. The public is widely dispersed throughout State park areas; hiking, boating, fishing, camping, and pursuing other outdoor recreational activities. To insure the safety of this large segment of the non-hunting public, it has been our continuing policy to close all State park lands to hunting during the Spring, Summer and early Fall seasons

Major portions of 48 State parks are open each Fall for both small and big game hunting. This activity begins with Archery Season during the month of October, and extends through the Antlerless Deer Season in December.

Predators may also be hunted or trapped during January and February each year.

IF YOU KNEW HOW A fish felt when he got out of bed you'd have a better chance of catching him!

The problem, of course, is to diagnose fish moods. Since most anglers can't converse with them (although some claim this distinction), it's difficult to learn how fish greet the day.

Knowing what factors influence fish behavior can add to your angling success. Sky condition, water temperature and water color all determine a fish's disposition. Successful anglers read this mood and match it with the correct casting technique.

In muddied or brown water fish are less likely to venture from their normal lies. They're reluctant to move any distance to investigate a lure or bait. This means an angler must east almos directly over the fish to get his attention. Casts should be more frequent with less distance between

In clear water fish are more eager and will travel farther seeking food. Therefore, fewer casts are needed, and the fisherman can work a larger territory. Wam water is the result of hot weather, and fish aren't much different from fishermen at this time. They're lethar-

gie and won't move about any more than is necessary. Again, this calls for more frequent casts to place the lure near enough to excite the fish. Cool water stimulates fish, causing them to move more. Anglers get by with fewer casts covering more water with each. Sky conditions, particularly during warm months, also in-fluence how fish act. If the sun comes up hot, fish stop moving at dawn, holding in one lie until evening. More casts are needed to put the lure in favorable areas. However, if dawn arrives with an overcast sky and a hint of light showers, fish will often feed on through the rain. Conse-quently, fewer casts are needed to connect with these care-

QUESTION: Where do sea shells come from?

ANSWER: When we see a pretty empty shell on a beach. we are apt to forget that an interesting little animal once built it. These shellmakers are mollusks - small, soft, boneless creatures. Such a moliusk hatches from the egg as a free swimming larva or veliger (1). After awhile, he is covered with a fleshy cape or mantle (3). The mantle is able to extract carbonate of lime from the sea water and deposit it in a strong hard material or shell. As the young mollusk keeps growing, adding larger spirals to the tiny shell he carried as a veliger, the mantle keeps covering the new spirals with shell (2). Then, when danger threatens, the animal can pull inside his shell, closing the entrance with a hard plate or trap door which he carries around attached to the end of his body. Some mollusks, like the clam, build shells of other shapes, but the material is
